“What is right with this picture” was a unique interactive preconference session of the Organization for Safety, Asepsis and Prevention (OSAP) 2018 Annual Infection Prevention Conference in Dallas, TX. “What is Right with this Picture” was hosted at the Texas A&M College of Dentistry. Session attendees comprised dental and hygiene faculty, dental safety consultants, practicing dentists and dental industry representatives. Attendees were assigned to five groups to address mock-ups on Handwashing & Hand care, Personal Protective Equipment, Surface Disinfection & Surface Barriers, NFPA/GHS Labeling for Chemicals, improper Eye-safety while using Curing Lights, and Classification of Clinical Waste. Dental student volunteers enacted roles in some of the mock-up stations. The session attendees interacted with the student volunteers and the session faculty during the first part of the session and were asked to bring up their concerns and comments in the second part of the session in Town Hall Q&A session while viewing over a hundred predetermined images/scenarios. Experiences and suggestions were shared in this meeting. After the meeting the images were uploaded on to a site for sharing with the attendees. Session Faculty: Dr. Raghunath Puttaiah, Professor, Texas A&M College of Dentistry
