Please join us in welcoming

Sarwat Hussain, MD, FRCR, FACR, FCPS with Commonwealth Radiology

to the Richmond Academy of Medicine

Sarwat Hussain, MD, FRCR, FACR, FCPS is a graduate of King Edward Medical College. He is a pioneer in bringing modern radiology to underserved regions, an innovator in healthcare quality, an academic researcher and teacher across 4 continents. He has established Global Academy of Healthcare Quality to improve patient care in Pakistan.

Dr. Hussain is focused on serving underprivileged communities around the world. In 2015, he launched the Journal of Global Radiology with the mission to improve access to medical imaging for the two thirds of the world's population who have no access to radiology services. More recently, he established the Global Academy of Healthcare Quality (GAHQ) with an intent to introduce a culture of Continuous Quality Improvement in South East Asia and the Middle East.

Clinically an interventional radiologist, Dr. Hussain has served as Chairman of Radiology at Aga Khan University, Pakistan; King Saud University, Saudi Arabia; and as Chief Medical Officer at Imam Al Hujjah Hospital, Iraq bringing modern Radiology to the regions. Additionally, he has served as Medical School Faculty and helped establish the divisions of Community Radiology at Harvard University and Boston University. Over his career, he has served as department Chairman for 22 years and Vice Chair or Division Director for 21 years.
