New Member Announcement

Commonwealth Radiology is pleased to welcome

Jawad S. Hussain, MD

Dr. Jawad Hussain graduated from Boston University with a BA in Biochemistry & Molecular Biology. He then went on to Georgetown University School of Medicine where he graduated with a Doctor of Medicine and a Master of Science. He completed his diagnostic radiology residency at the Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, Harvard Medical School. Additionally, he completed a fellowship in Vascular & Interventional Radiology at the University of Michigan. During Residency, he served as a State Delegate to the AMA Annual Meetings for several years, a Representative to the Committee on Legislation, Alternate Trustee as well as Governing Council Member for the Massachusetts Medical Society. He also served on the Hospital Quality Improvement Council at the Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center. He has coauthored several articles in Radiology journals. His clinical focus is Interventional Radiology and his special interests include Interventional Oncology, portal hypertension, peripheral arterial disease and male and female genitourinary interventions (uterine fibroid & prostatic artery embolization).

In his free time, Dr. Hussain enjoys rooting for Boston sports teams and traveling with his wife and three children.
