Please join us in welcoming

Samuel Kraus, MD
with Virginia Physicians for Women to the Richmond Academy of Medicine

A Harrisonburg native, Dr. Kraus spent the latter half of his childhood as a missionary kid in Kijabe, Kenya, where he was first exposed to medicine. He returned to the United States to attend the University of Virginia and then moved to Richmond for medical school at VCU. He completed his OB/GYN residency at VCU Health, where he was honored to establish his patients' trust by helping them make informed decisions. Open communication became a hallmark of his care at every stage of life.

Dr. Kraus sees patients at VPFW's Henrico Doctors' and St. Mary's office. He delivers babies at Henrico Doctors' Hospital and St. Mary's Hospital.

Dr. Kraus cherishes the opportunity to walk alongside his obstetric patients through the joy and excitement of pregnancy, but also through the uncertainty, anxiety, and fear that comes with it. Dr. Kraus loves that the relationship doesn't have to end after pregnancy or once a patient has finished having children. He is committed to improving access to respectful, informed reproductive healthcare for women of all ages, from their reproductive years through menopause and beyond.

Dr. Kraus feels lucky to be married to the best wife and mother in the world. They have a young son who loves all things related to cowboys and construction vehicles and are expecting a baby girl in winter 2027. When he's not seeing patients or delivering babies, you'll find Dr. Kraus spending time with his family, throwing a ball with his golden retriever Libby (named after Libby Hill), catching a game at the Flying Squirrels stadium, or staying active via outdoor running and Peloton.
