Cole Messersmith, MD

with Virginia Physicians for Women to the Richmond Academy of Medicine

After growing up in Richmond, Dr. Messersmith earned his undergraduate degree in Anthropology from the George Washington University and his medical degree from the George Washington University School of Medicine. He then returned home to Richmond where he completed his residency at Virginia Commonwealth University.

Whether it's delivering a patient's first baby or helping them decide on a major surgery such as a hysterectomy, Dr. Messersmith considers it a privilege to partner with women during so many key moments in their lives. He's even had the opportunity to take care of a multigeneration family of women, working with each of them through many unique transitions in their health.

Dr. Messersmith spends his spare time with his partner Matthew and their two cats "Pawla Abdul" and "Catalie Imbruglia." (The cats are sadly much less talented vocalists than their namesakes would imply). He enjoys health and wellness, he's an HGTV addict, and he loves gardening. He is also an avid runner, taking on the Richmond half marathon each year and even completing several marathons! A fun fact about Dr. Messersmith is that the same year he was accepted to medical school he was also pursuing a position at the Jane Goodall Institute to complete research in primatology.
