

Maintain your Domicile on the Indian Reservation To Avoid State Income Tax while on Active Duty

By Captain Samuel F. Wright, JAGC, USN (Ret.)²

4.5—SCRA protection against state/local tax authorities

7.0—Military voting rights

Q: I am a Sergeant in the United States Army, on active duty. I read with great interest your “Law Review” articles about the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (SCRA) and other laws that are especially pertinent to those of us who serve in the military.

In Law Reviews 15117, 15113, and 15095, you discussed the scenario of the service member who lived in a state like Texas or Florida—a state that has no state income tax. You suggested that such a service member would be well advised to maintain his or her domicile at the place where he or she lived immediately before entering active duty, in order to avoid having to pay state income tax while on active duty. Does that advice also apply to service members (like me) who grew up on Indian reservations?

² Captain Wright is the author or co-author of more than 1,200 of the more than 1,400 “Law Review” articles available at www.servicemembers-lawcenter.org. He has been dealing with the federal reemployment statute for 33 years and has made it the focus of his legal career. He developed the interest and expertise in this law during the decade (1982-92) that he worked for the United States Department of Labor (DOL) as an attorney. Together with one other DOL attorney (Susan M. Webman), he largely drafted the interagency task force work product that President George H.W. Bush presented to Congress (as his proposal) in February 1991. On October 13, 1994, President Bill Clinton signed into law the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act (USERRA), Public Law 103-353. The version that President Clinton signed in 1994 was 85% the same as the Webman-Wright draft. Wright has also dealt with the VRRRA and USERRA as a judge advocate in the Navy and Navy Reserve, as an attorney for Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve (ESGR), as an attorney for the United States Office of Special Counsel (OSC), and as an attorney in private practice, at Tully Rinckey PLLC. For the last six years (June 2009 through May 2015), he was the Director of ROA’s Service Members Law Center (SMLC), as a full-time employee of ROA. In June 2015, he returned to Tully Rinckey PLLC, this time in an “of counsel” relationship. To schedule a consultation with Samuel F. Wright or another Tully Rinckey PLLC attorney concerning USERRA or other legal issues, please call Mr. Zachary Merriman of the firm’s Client Relations Department at (518) 640-3538. Please mention Captain Wright when you call.

I am an American Indian. I was born and raised on a reservation in a Western state, and I still lived there when I graduated from high school and joined the Army seven years ago. My parents and other Indian residents of the reservation are exempt from having to pay state income tax to the state where the reservation is located. Does that exemption also apply to me?

A: Yes. The pertinent subsection of the SCRA is as follows: “An Indian servicemember whose legal residence or domicile is a Federal Indian reservation shall be taxed by the laws applicable to Federal Indian reservations and not the State where the reservation is located.”³

Congratulations to my friend Colonel Paul Conrad, who accomplished the codification of this exemption.⁴

Q: How long does this exemption last?

A: Your exemption from having to pay state income tax to the state where the reservation is located lasts until you establish a new domicile elsewhere or until you leave active duty, whichever comes first. When you leave active duty, by retirement or otherwise, you will lose this exemption, unless of course you return to live on the reservation.

Q: What do I need to do to maintain this exemption?

A: I suggest that you vote by absentee ballot in each major election in the county where your reservation home is located. You must refrain from registering to vote or voting in some other place. Your domicile is the place where you lived before you entered active duty. If you remain on active duty for a full career of 20 years or more, it is likely that at some point your parents will move away or pass away. That will not affect your domicile. It is not necessary that you have relatives living at the address of your domicile or that you be able to receive mail at that address.

⁴ Paul retired from the Army Reserve Judge Advocate General’s Corps about a decade ago. He successfully argued for this exemption in cases arising under the Soldiers’ and Sailors’ Civil Relief Act (SSCRA). When Congress enacted the SCRA in 2003, as a long-overdue rewrite of the SSCRA (which dates from 1917), what was implicit under the old law became explicit under the new law.
