

The Society for Medieval and Renaissance Philosophy
Call for Papers
RSA 2019, Toronto

The Society for Medieval and Renaissance Philosophy will sponsor several panels at the 2019 annual meeting of the Renaissance Society of America in Toronto, March 17th to 19th, 2019. We welcome proposals on any relevant theme, but we are especially interested in the following topics:

- Medieval and Renaissance accounts of language.
- The transmission of Medieval and Renaissance authors in Early Modernity.
- Discussions of critical receptions of Medieval and Renaissance authors and the interpretive effects these readings engendered.
- Themes linked to work on Machiavelli and Lucretius and their transmission.

Please submit a paper title, abstract (150 words) and abbreviated CV (300 words) to Sean Erwin (Serwin@barry.edu) by Monday July 16th, 2018. Papers should have a presentation length of twenty minutes or less and should be delivered in English.

In line with RSA guidelines, presenters must have a PhD or other terminal degree or be an advanced dissertation candidate presenting on a topic derived from their current dissertation research. For complete submission guidelines please see: <https://www.rsa.org/page/2019SubmissionsGuide>

Due to changes to the RSA conference planning schedule, Associate Organizations like the SMRP will not be notified of approved panels until November 1st, 2018. The deadline for conference registration is December 15th, 2018. Please note: to present at the RSA one must pay for RSA membership for the conference year in question.

We would also ask that presenters consider becoming members of the SMRP. To become a member visit <http://smrpphil.org/> and click Membership.
