WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

Employers, managers and occupational health and safety professionals or even employee representatives involved in ensuring health and safety of employees, who have ideally listened or looked at the return to work training that was previously done.

We were inundated with questions from attendees and did not manage to address this during both training sessions. This session has been planned to address the questions that were submitted during the training sessions.

The main questions that we received were around cleaning, medical aspects of COVID-19 particularly around medical screening, vulnerable workers, occupational health staffing, PPE and risk assessment, waste management and other questions.
