Author Instructions

Share your standards knowledge through publication in the SES Standardization – Journal of Research and Innovation.

The SES Standardization – Journal of Research and Innovation is the premier publication for standards research, and best practices in standardization. Standardization is indexed by Elsevier and those publishing as a single author meet applicable publication requirements of the SES CStd certification program. Read below for guidelines in submitting your work for consideration.

All article submissions are to be provided to admin@ses-standards.org and shall contain the following information:

- Title;
- Authors and their affiliations, including short bios;
- High-resolution photo of author(s);
- Word count for article: approximate limit is 1,500 – 2,500 words;
- Main article text;
- Cited references;
- Figure/table captions list in Word document*; and
- Supplement/supporting information if any.

List of Authors: If the author group consists of 6 authors or fewer, all author names shall be listed. If there are more than 6 authors/editors, the first 6 author names (in alphabetical order) are listed followed by ‘et al.’

*Graphical Figures and Tables: Graphics and tables shall be provided as editable vector drawings (emf, wmf, eps, ai, etc.) with a minimum resolution of 600 dpi. Please provide the reference sources in the figure/table captions list, if any. Images should be sent separately (NOT embedded into the article) and notations should be made in the article about where the images should be placed. These notations can be in brackets with an instruction e.g., [INSERT FIGURE A HERE].

References

References to cited works should be placed at the end of the article, after the author's bio. References should follow the styles shown below. Note that URLs are NOT considered sufficient references; articles that list URLs as references without providing additional information will be returned to the author(s).

Conflict of Interest: All authors are requested to disclose any actual or potential conflict of interest including any financial, personal or other relationships with other people or organizations within three years of beginning the submitted work that could inappropriately influence, or be perceived to influence, their work. In your submission, please add an explanatory paragraph in the supplement/supporting information under the heading of ‘Conflict of interest’. If there are no conflicts, please write: Authors declare that there are no conflicts of interest.

Please note, submission of an article for consideration does not guarantee publication. Submissions are reviewed and selected based on topic, depth of information covered, cohesiveness with other selected articles, and other factors as determined by the SES. We will notify the author when a decision is made to publish or not to publish.

Publishing Deadlines:

- February 15 for the March/April issue
- April 15 for the May/June issue
- June 15 for the July/August issue
- August 15 for the September/October issue
- October 15 for the November/December issue

Appendix A: Publication Policies

Commercialism Policy. Commercialism is unacceptable in any SES publication. Use generic terms whenever possible. If you must name a specific product, capitalize trademarks and trade names.

Conflicts of Interest Policy. Authors are responsible for recognizing and disclosing in their cover letters any conflict of interest that could be perceived to bias their work, and they should acknowledge all financial support and any other personal connections with any of the Editors.

“Previously Published” and Preprint Policy. The policy of the SES forbids the publication of previously published material in a peer-reviewed, archival document or electronic format. With limited exceptions, this definition would encompass any work that is currently subject to copyright protection. The material in question need not be identical to the previous publication, only substantially the same. The Editor of the publication is responsible for determining whether the material is “substantially the same” in each case. Exceptions to this policy can be granted only with the approval of the Editor. Papers that contain some previously published materials require permission from the copyright owners. All submissions will be subject to a similarity checking software program.

Authors may submit for publication a paper that has been posted online as a preprint. A preprint is considered a non-peer reviewed draft document that is shared publicly on preprint servers. Preprints may be given a digital object identifier (DOI) by the preprint servers. Once the peer-reviewed paper is published by SES, the paper must be cited using the full citation to the published journal.

Peer Review Policy. All papers are subject to review by two anonymous peer reviewers, as the process is described in SES’s peer review process (copy will be provided upon request). Submission of Work does not in any way guarantee that SES will publish the Work.

Policy on Plagiarism. SES does not tolerate plagiarism or violation of any federal copyright laws in any form in its publications. Plagiarism is an unethical behavior and is never acceptable. Work by others that are cited in articles or books whether quoted directly or paraphrased, must be properly acknowledged either by references or as footnotes.

Authors’ Responsibilities

All authors are equally accountable regarding the submitted work. To avoid the charge or claim of plagiarism, an author must provide clear indication of the original source of material by giving reference to previous work or source of a quote.

Authors are expected to be responsible for the contents of the text submitted to SES for publication. Hence, it is the responsibility of the author(s) to adhere to the highest ethical and professional standards with respect to plagiarism.

Authors who are unclear about what does and does not constitute plagiarism should research the definition to ensure that, in their collective conscience they are not in violation of plagiarism prior to submitting their work to SES.

Images. Authors are expected to properly reference image(s) from other sources and obtain written permission for the use of the image(s) from the copyright holder(s).
Author Instructions

If journal reviewers bring a charge of plagiarism to the author(s), a response via email is required within three months. If there is no response, SES will contact the authors’ institution via email. If there is no response from the authors or the institution, SES will no longer accept any submissions from the authors or from their institution and we will remove the article from the online journal issue. SES will contact both the author and the author’s institution using the email: admin@ses-standard.org.

Reviewers’ Responsibilities

If reviewers or other readers detect or suspect a case of plagiarism in an SES published work or material in the review stage, it is their ethical and professional responsibility to report the case to admin@ses-standards.org.

Appendix B: Types of Submissions

The editor may waive these restrictions to encourage papers on topics that cannot be treated within these limitations. Review papers concerned with a large topic area may be longer in order to adequately cover the topic. Justification for longer manuscripts should be provided and permission received from the journal reviewers. *Tables and figures of normal size should generally be counted as 250-word equivalents each.

Technical Manuscripts (1,500 – 2,500 words) are full-length papers that significantly contribute to the technical literature and should be of interest to standardization professionals and/or researchers. They must include a review of past work in the relevant area and should present information of current interest or probe new fields.

Interviews and Columns (maximum of 1,500 words) present the notes of an interview with leading thought leaders from industry, academia, government, or nonprofit organizations. The format for this may include a Q&A with or without additional notes. The Interview will be reviewed and approved by journal reviewers. The column may offer different perspectives, from different industries, on a recurring topic or theme.

Book Reviews (2,000 words) assess new books whose content is judged important by the journal reviewers. They summarize the work, illuminate its strengths and weaknesses, and place it in context with existing literature.

Errata and Corrigenda Errata are corrections of egregious, technical errors made during the publication process that appear in published papers. Corrigenda are corrections of egregious, technical errors made before the publication process. Errata and Corrigenda are published as separate documents and are linked online to the original paper.
Appendix C: Author/Copyright Owner Agreement

Paper Title as submitted (the “Work”)

For U.S. and foreign government employees who have prepared this Work as a part of their official duties, it is understood that copyright is not available for assignment. This agreement must be accepted so as to agree to and acknowledge all other terms of this agreement.

“You” means the Author(s) (and Copyright Owner(s), if different))

Author’s Obligations. You have submitted the Work to SES for publication. You represent that the Work submitted has not been previously published. You promise that the Work is not currently under consideration by another publication. You warrant that the Work is original material (except for any material from copyrighted sources reproduced with the written permission of the copyright holder sufficient to permit SES to use the Work as contemplated) and is in no way a violation or an infringement of any copyright belonging to any third party; that the materials contained in the Work are accurate; and that the Work contains no defamatory or otherwise illegal materials.

You grant the following rights to SES: the worldwide and perpetual right to (a) print and/or electronically publish and distribute the Work (or portions thereof) in all versions of SES publications (in any language and with the right to translate), websites and/or newsletters and right to print and/or electronically publish and distribute the Work to other sites under license or contract with SES; (b) include the Work in advertising and promotion; (c) include the Work in print and non-print products anywhere in the world.

Corresponding Author: The corresponding author is the person with whom SES communicates. He/She/They is responsible for updating all co-authors regarding the status of the Work. The corresponding author is responsible for transferring copyright and has communicated the terms of SES copyright with co-authors prior to publication.

Electronically accepting this Agreement represents and warrants that you (and any co-authors) are the sole copyright holder(s) of the Work and that you have identified all co-authors to SES. You also represent that each of the co-author(s) have also granted permission to SES to use their name(s) in connection with any past, present, or future promotional activity by SES, including, but not limited to, promotions for upcoming issues or publications, circulation solicitations, advertising, or other publications in connection with the publication.

Compensation. You will not receive or be entitled to any royalty, fee, commission, payment or other compensation.

Copyright Assignment. It is SES’s policy to require authors/copyright owners to assign the copyright in the submitted works, in order that SES may disseminate the Work to the fullest extent. You hereby assign all rights, including the copyright, in the Work to SES, prior to publication, by executing this Agreement, including but not limited to any and all copyright(s) therein held by each Author, together with any rights of each to secure renewals, reissues and extensions of copyright that may be secured under the laws now or hereafter in force and effect in the United States or in any other country, and any and all rights to enforce such copyright(s) or bring other claim in connection with such copyright.

The Work becomes the copyrighted property of SES and shall not be published anywhere without the prior written consent of SES. SES reserves the right of first publication of all papers offered for publication.
Author/Copyright Owner Agreement

The author(s), if different from the copyright owner(s) also represents that he/she/they prepared the Work within the scope of their employment, as a work-for-hire.

Limited Right of Use by Author(s)’ Employer. SES grants the authors’ employer the limited and non-exclusive license to make a limited number of photocopies (hardcopy paper copies, specifically excluding any electronic copies) and circulate these copies within its company for internal purposes. Author(s)’ employer acknowledges and will retain SES’s copyright notice on each hardcopy it makes.

As the Author, SES permits you certain uses that do not require permission from SES. These include:

- The right to make copies of the Work for your own personal use, including for your own classroom teaching use;
- The right to make copies and distribute copies of the Work to research colleagues, for the personal use by such colleagues (but not commercially or systematically, e.g., via an email list or list serve);
- The right to post the accepted version of the Work on your website or your employer’s website with reference to the publication by SES as the copyright holder. This version does not include the final edits. Such accepted papers may be posted as electronic files on the Author’s own website for personal or professional use, or on the Author’s internal university or corporate networks/intranet, or secure external website at the Author’s institution, but not for commercial sale or for any systematic external distribution by a third party (e.g.: a list server or database connected to a public access server). Prior to publication, the Author must include the following notice on the accepted paper: “This is an article accepted for publication in Standardization – Journal of Research and Innovation, Copyright @ (year), SES. NOTE: Directing researchers to the DOI will ensure the authors get appropriate citations from CrossRef;
- After publication of the Work by SES, the notice should be amended to read as follows: “This is the accepted version of an article published in Standardization – Journal of Research and Innovation, Copyright @ (year), SES;
- A final version will be supplied to each author and coauthor, with a Watermark on the last page that states: “ Copyright by SES (all rights reserved), pursuant to License Agreement. No further reproduction authorized.” This version can be given to your employer or funding agency and, after the 12-month embargo period has passed, this may be uploaded to your company or institutional repository. Continue to direct researchers to the DOI for proper CrossRef attribution.
- The right to present the Work at a meeting or conference and to distribute copies of such Work to the delegate attending the meeting after the Work is published by SES with appropriate citation to the published article;
- For the author’s employer, if the Work is a “work for hire”, made within the scope of the author’s employment, the right to use all or part of the information in (any version of) the Work for other intra-company use (e.g., training);
- You retain any patent and trademark rights and rights to any process or procedure described in the Work;
- The right to include the Work in full or in part in a thesis or dissertation (provided that this is not to be published commercially);
- The right to use the Work or any part thereof in a printed compilation of works of the author, such as collected writings or lecture notes (subsequent to publication of the Work by SES); and
- The right to prepare other derivative works, to the extent the Work is not book-length form, or to otherwise re-use portions or excerpts in other publications, with full acknowledgement of its original publication by SES.

Other uses by authors must be authorized in writing by SES. By electronically accepting this Agreement, you agree to all the above terms and limitations.
