

NEWS RELEASE

69th Annual SES Conference Postponed

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

13 April 2020

SES - The Society for Standards Professionals announces that the 69th Annual SES Conference has been postponed until 2021. The location will remain Charleston, SC and the SES website will be updated shortly with the new dates and logistics.

“The safety of our members, speakers, and vendors is our number one priority. With that in mind, and the longer lasting developments surrounding COVID-19, we are postponing the 2020 SES Annual Conference by a year - we look forward to seeing you in Charleston, SC in August 2021. Details on the conference, and additional virtual events will be shared soon. Be well, and stay safe.” – Mili Washington, SES President

The SES is evaluating options to offer virtual content during August 2020, register as an SES ENewsletter subscriber and receive up-to-date information on upcoming events delivered to your inbox.

Were you hoping to be a vendor or sponsor this year at the SES Annual Conference? The SES recently launched the SES Advertising package which includes listing on the SES website, inclusion in the SES journal – Standards Engineering, and opportunities to submit articles for inclusion in the SES ENewsletter.
