Announcing SES Learning Opportunities 2020 Survey - Make Your Voice Heard

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

21 July 2020

SES - The Society for Standards Professionals announces an SES survey to support the SES education program. The SES holds education and self-improvement of members as well as raising the general body of knowledge in the standards community in very high regard. As a result, SES ensures that online learning resources are available to members. The SES also offers members the opportunity to attend a foundational course on the fundamentals of the standards development life cycle each year.

To support the continued improvement of the SES foundational course the SES is seeking your input on what topics members would most like to learn about. The SES is committed to providing a worthwhile mix of materials covering theory and practical application which are of greatest value to our members and the community.

"Whether you are a current SES member or not, please give us five minutes of your time to tell us your highest priority topics for learning. With your input, we can make sure that we're taking standards education in the right direction, a direction that will best serve you, your career, and your community," said SES Education Chair, Zijun Tong.

The survey can be found here: https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/SES_Education

Please submit survey responses by August 7th, 2020.
