

Call for Speakers for SES Annual Webinar Series 2020

Each year the Society for Standards Professionals (SES) presents a series of six global webinars featuring top speakers on a wide range of topics. We are looking for compelling speakers who can speak to areas related to topics, broad and specific, in standardization. Feel free to nominate yourself or suggest one of your contacts.

Titles for past presentations have included the following:

- Artificial Intelligence and its implications for the future of standardization
- Public Safety Need Drives Development of Standards for Preparedness & Response to Active Shooter/Hostile Events
- Information Governance as a key enabler of today's big data strategies
- Publishing Standards and much more.

Share your knowledge! SES webinars are well attended, with typical range of 25 – 70 registrants representing for-profit, non-profit, government and NGOs for each session.
