NEWS & RESOURCES

Security Survey Launching this Week

Do you want to learn what your peers are doing with respect to Internet, end user devices, remote access, wireless security and more—and also what specific security products they are using?

Don't miss this year's security survey. Watch for an email message later this week!

TAG Announces Discounts for Idealware Training

TAG members now get 15-25% off all Idealware training courses. Idealware is a nonprofit, that provides resources to help nonprofits use technology for better social impact. Read all the details.

TAG Memberships Expired on March 15th

You must renew your membership online to continue to receive member benefits and access the TAG web site. Without membership you cannot participate in TAG events.

If you are the primary TAG contact, please login to www.tagtech.org and click on the link in your Profile to renew your membership now.

Interesting Reading

A New Resource for Evaluation & Learning

The Igniting Insights blog aims to equip, empower, and encourage nonprofit professionals with perspectives, tips, and tools that make the work of evaluation, performance management, and quality improvement more intuitive and meaningful. The blog will be highlighting some resources and thinkers as well as share some of the lessons learned from work with nonprofits and funders. More.

Make Sure Your Nonprofit's Communications Are Safe and Secure

If you are concerned about who may be listening to your organization's communications, there are steps you can take to make it harder to do so. No technology can guarantee 100 percent secure communications, and any technology is susceptible to human failings, but you can change your behavior and digital tools to be safer.

This article from TechSoup is full of information and links, making it a kind of crash course in security techniques and tools for nonprofits.
