Patient Experience Journal Releases Fall 2015 Issue
Published in association with The Beryl Institute, Volume 2, Issue 2 includes patient experience improvement research from global perspectives across healthcare settings

Dallas, TX (November 16, 2015) – The Beryl Institute announces the publication of Volume 2, Issue 2 of Patient Experience Journal (PXJ), an international, open access, peer-reviewed journal focused on research and proven practices around understanding and improving patient experience. The second volume of PXJ covers the span of critical issues identified as driving the state of patient experience forward.

Published in association with The Beryl Institute, Volume 2, Issue 2 includes 21 articles from over 107 contributing authors focusing on five themes:

- Patient & Family Partnership
- Experience of Care
- Processes & Measures
- Structure
- Disease of Specific Populations
- Practice Case

Authors represent organizations such as Alberta Health Services, Brown University, Cancer Care Ontario, Chronic Illness Alliance, Danderyds University Hospital, Emory University, Ernst & Young LLP, Jacksonville Healthcare, Inc., Mayo Clinic, NHS England, NYC Health & Hospitals Corporation, Patient Centered Outcomes Research Institute, Pfizer Ltd, Picker Institute Europe, Providence Health Care, Rush University, St. Vincent's Private Hospital Sydney, Stanford University, University of Massachusetts Medical School, University of Tasmania, University of Québec in Montréal and others.

“With this latest issue of PXJ, we are seeing an emergence of not just simply talking about patient and family voice, but the real efforts to include patients and families in the research itself,” said Jason Wolf, Editor of PXJ and President of The Beryl Institute.

Since its release in April 2014 as a biannual publication, the first three issues of PXJ have included 62 articles with close to 51,000 downloads by readers in over 100 countries, reinforcing PXJ’s broad reach and impact on the emerging field of patient experience.
