Think Home Care!

Many people find they need help maintaining their independence in their later years. Though families and friends are often the first source of assistance, additional help is sometimes necessary. When that happens, your local home care agency can be a true ally.

On any given day, home care agencies help tens of thousands of Bay Staters live safely – and better – at home. They accomplish this with a compassionate, professional approach that supports family and friends, respects patients’ wishes and privacy, and increases independence and safety.

Though health insurance and public programs like Medicare often pay for home care following hospitalizations or during acute illnesses, they do not typically cover chronic or supportive home care services. Private Duty home care agencies, however, specialize in these situations.

The Home Care Alliance of Massachusetts – a nonprofit association of home care providers – has designed this guide to help you understand the range of services available from private agencies and to choose the one that best suits your needs. To learn more about the Alliance, visit us at www.thinkhomecare.org.

First: Understand What Home Care Is

“Home care” encompasses a wide array of services but – at its core – involves aides, therapists, and nurses providing assistance and care in a client’s residence. Depending on the situation, a person may need help around-the-clock, once a day, or for just a few hours a week.

For instance, some people use home care briefly to recover from an injury or a hospitalization. Others use it to supplement services from assisted living or retirement communities. Still others use it to remain healthy and independent at home, despite chronic illness or the gradual diminishment of capabilities that come with aging.

In all of these situations, good home care recognizes that each client requires an individualized care plan; services vary, but the objective is always to support independence and allow you to remain at home.

Second: Understand The Agency Advantage

After deciding that home care is the right option for them, many people ask why they should contract with an agency rather than hire an aide or nurse directly. The truth is that home care agencies provide significant benefits over direct hires in the areas that matter most to families:

- Employer Obligations: By hiring an aide or nurse directly, you take on the legal responsibilities of an employer, including paying payroll taxes, workers compensation, and unemployment insurance. Working with an agency alleviates you of these responsibilities.
- Peace-of-Mind: The only background checks that come with a direct hire are those you conduct yourself. Home care agencies are required to conduct criminal background checks and screen their employees.
- Security & Contingency: If your direct hire harms you, you’re on your own. In contrast, home care agencies are required to carry various forms of insurance to protect you. They can also quickly provide a replacement if your aide or nurse is sick, injured, or changes jobs.
- Training & Supervision: As with background checks, you’re responsible for training and supervising your direct hire. Agencies, however, have the experience, knowledge, and resources to ensure their workers are thoroughly trained in all services they perform, including safe infection control, falls prevention, emergency preparation, and personal care tasks.

Third: Assess Your Needs

Before looking for an agency, you should determine what kind of care you need. Do you need skilled care provided by a registered nurse? How about hands-on personal care services, such as help with bathing and dressing? Are there cognitive or mental health issues that need to be addressed? Does your home need to be made safer and more accessible? How often – and for how long – do you expect to need care?

Home care agencies have staff with expertise in assessing client needs and developing plans of care, usually at no charge. These professionals can also help you negotiate the maze of care resources and effectively communicate your needs to physicians, hospital staff, and nursing home managers. They can also help emotionally resistant clients understand and accept services.

Depending on the scope of need, you may also want to work with an independent Geriatric Care Manager (GCM). These trained professionals – most often nurses or social workers – can help assess needs, find resources, and monitor services. Some agencies have GCMs on staff or have established relationship with reputable GCMs in their communities. You can find a list of GCMs at www.gcmnewengland.org.

The state's Aging Service Access Point (ASAP) network is also a good resource. ASAPs are publicly-funded, local agencies that provide information and referrals for a range of elder services. You can find the ASAP nearest you by calling (800) AGE-INFO or visiting www.800ageinfo.com.

Fourth: Explore Payment Options

The simplest way to pay for home care is to do so privately; i.e., directly, as you would for any other service. This affordable option gives you greater control over your care than you would having to coordinate with either government or insurance companies. All of the agencies listed in this directory accept private payment and will work with you to coordinate arrangements and billing.

However, government programs and private insurance will pay for home care under specific circumstances:

Medicare covers home care when the client 1) cannot leave home without physical assistance, 2) is under a physician's care, and 3) requires skilled nursing or therapy services. The state Medicaid program covers home health under similar requirements.

The Massachusetts Home Care program provides state-funded, non-medical services to elders and disabled individuals who meet certain financial guidelines. These supportive services enable frail elders to remain in their homes and target those at risk of needing nursing home care. They can be accessed locally through one of the Aging Service Access Points (ASAPs) mentioned earlier by calling (800) AGE-INFO.

Commercial health insurance policies typically cover some home care services when a person is recovering from surgery or illness, though benefits vary from plan to plan and there is usually a cost-sharing provision. Check with your insurer's customer service department to get details on coverage requirements, benefits, co-payments, and deductibles.

Long-term care insurance policies almost always cover home care services as an alternative to nursing homes. The home care benefits under these policies are usually capped at a certain dollar level per day, week, or month. Home care benefits vary greatly among plans, so check your policy.

Fifth: Know about Agency Accreditation

Unlike most states, Massachusetts does not offer a specific license for private pay home care agencies. Since 2010, however, the Alliance has offered an Accreditation program with similar standards to licensure in most other states, both to establish quality standards within the industry, and to help consumers make informed choices.

The program includes fifteen standards relating to: client rights, privacy, and complaint procedures; protections against abuse; fair employment practices; caregiver background screening; competency, training and supervision; insurance coverage; and compliance with all applicable federal, state & local laws.

To become Accredited, agencies must present documentation to the Alliance; these documents are then carefully reviewed by Alliance staff for proof of compliance. Accreditation is only awarded to agencies that meet or exceed all fifteen standards.

Accreditation is not the only indicator of an agency's competence. All Medicare certified agencies, for instance, have met strict standards established by the federal government. Organizations such as JCAHO and CHAP also offer certifications to home care agencies.

To learn more, visit www.thinkhomecare.org/accreditation.

Sixth: Find & Interview Agencies

To begin your search, flip to this directory's County-by-County Cross Reference, which begins on page 77 and find the county you're looking for care in. If you're looking for an agency that is either Medicare Certified or Alliance Accredited, look for the indication immediately to the right of each company's name. Then, use the page references to look through all the agencies that service that county; pay close attention to the kinds of services they offer, and to whether or not they are Medicare Certified or Alliance Accredited. You might also want to check their websites and consult with your physician or hospital.

Once you've narrowed your search, take the time to interview these agencies over the telephone. Any agency listed in this guide should be able to answer all of the following questions:

- Has the agency been reviewed by an independent organization, such as Mass Dept. of Health, JCAHO, CHAP or the Home Care Alliance of Massachusetts? If so, will they provide you with evidence of their accreditation/certification from that organization?
- Does the agency have literature describing its services, fees, and billing process? If so, will they send you copies?
- Does the agency work with the client and family to develop a written plan of care or service contract? If so, how often is it updated?
- Does the agency directly employ its workers, or are they considered independent contractors? (They should be directly employed).
- Does the agency pay workers' compensation insurance and payroll taxes for its workers?
- Does the agency provide a written explanation of client & family rights?
- Does the agency educate family members about the care they provide?
- Are agency caregivers and supervisors – including backup caregivers – available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week?
- How does the agency investigate complaints and/or resolve conflicts between agency staff and clients?
- Does the agency have professional & general liability insurance?
- Will the agency provide a list of references?
