

TILE INDUSTRY CAREERS

Setting tile takes several years to master. Once you are proficient as a tile setter, there are several other careers that you could pursue in the tile industry.

ESTIMATOR

Tile contractors have people estimate the price, value, number, quantity, and man-hours needed to set tile per industry standards.

PROJECT MANAGER

Budget, plan, and schedule manpower and materials, then manage the entire project from start to finish for tile contractors.

BUSINESS OWNER

Set your own schedule, find your own customers, order your own supplies, estimate your own work, and be your own boss.

ARCHITECTURAL REP

Call on architects and interior designers to get manufacturers' products specified for upcoming projects.

TRAINER

Trade associations, manufacturers, and tile contractors hire tile setters to train others on industry standards and methods.

TECHNICAL REP

Assist with job site problems, answer installation questions, and support company training initiatives.

SALES REP

Distributors and manufacturers hire tile setters to sell their products because they know how to relate to tile contractors.
