THE PRESIDENT'S CORNER

by
Ernest Furchtgott

Although I have no dramatic news to report, I would like to assure the membership that TPA is functioning between annual meetings. Actually, the real work horses of our organization are the Secretary-Treasurer, Bob Stepbach; the Editor of the Newsletter, Frank Deter (I hope that this will not be cut in the editorial office); and the chairmen of the various committees.

I would like to give you just a brief report of what has happened since our meeting in October. Leonard Morgan served as our unofficial watchdog in Nashville while the legislature was in session. It is good to know that he was not faced with any emergencies. Sometimes no news is really the best news. Steve Brody, chairman of an ad hoc committee, tried to obtain legislation to include psychological services under the provisions of Medicaid legislation. If you read your local newspaper, you are probably well aware of the fact that our state's finances are tight. Thus, despite Steve's valiant efforts, it did not seem possible this year to include all psychological services under Medicaid. Most likely, only services for patients in state institutions will be covered. Hopefully, the legislature in the future will extend coverage also for individuals who are not in state-supported institutions.

TPA is also working on a proposal to have legislation on health insurance coverage for psychological services. Hopefully, by the time the legislature next meets, we will have a good draft.

Leon Lebovitz and Bob Vidulich are already at work in Memphis planning for our annual meeting. I hope that we'll have as good a meeting, or even a better one, than our Chattanooga sessions.

Finally, all members can help the Association by interesting .

psychologists in the State who are not members of TPA to join our ranks. It is not necessary for me to enumerate the importance of having a strong state association with a large membership. Today the trend in Washington is to delegate more and more of the responsibilities to the states for carrying out various aspects of social legislation. We as psychologists should be concerned with and involved in a number of these programs. We can be most effective in carrying out these functions by acting through our state association. Therefore, I urge you to try to help us to increase the membership of our organization.

SCIENCE YIELDS TO SOCIAL ACTION

The theme of the 1969 Annual Convention of the American Psychological Association, scheduled to be held in Washington, DC, in September, is "Psychology and the Problems of Society."

Usual emphases at APA meetings is on psychology as a science. However, in response to a proposal made by American Psychologists for Social Action, the psychologists assembled will devote two-hour morning sessions to symposia on urban problems, federal social legislation, compensatory education, the responsibilities of scientists for the uses to which their research may be put, and student protests and rebellion. No competing activities, for example, the traditional presentations of scientific papers, are scheduled in competition with these symposia. Workshops will follow the discussions.

APSA officials have stated that resource persons and discussion leaders are needed to serve in these workshops, and they ask everybody who is interested in participating in these ventures to communicate with M. J. Miller, Institute of Behavioral Science, University of Colorado, Boulder, CO 80302.

CROMWELL LEAVES TENNESSEE

Rue L. Cromwell, Ph.D., immediate past president of the Tennessee Psychological Association, has been named Chief, Psychology Division, Lafayette Clinic, 951 East Lafayette, Detroit, MI 48207. He plans to assume the duties of his new position soon.

Dr. Cromwell, widely known among researchers on psychopathology and particularly for his work on schizophrenia, leaves the directorship of Vanderbilt psychiatric research to go to Michigan. There he will continue the investigations which have long been his keen interest.

LITHIUM RESEARCHERS CONVENE

Scientists vitally interested in research on lithium held a three-day conclave in Murfreesboro on April 29 and 30 and May 1.

Theme of the sessions, which met in Murfreesboro Veterans Hospital and at Middle Tennessee State University, was "Basic Mechanisms of Lithium." The venture was coordinated by John J. Wittrig, Ph.D., Chief, Psychobiology Laboratory, Murfreesboro Veterans Hospital, and A. E. Woods, Ph.D., research biochemist at MTSU.

Lithium is of special interest to both research and clinical psychologists, psychiatrists, and chemists because of its therapeutic effects on acute mania. It has been called the only really specific drug yet known for a specific neuropsychiatric disorder, and it works its therapy without clouding consciousness, dulling the senses of perception, or adversely affecting mentation. Drs. Wittrig and Woods, whose investigations have gained international attention, have concentrated their research efforts on measuring endogenous lithium in body tissues and on studies of the psychological, physiological, and biochemical processes involved in lithium action.

Special participants in the discussions were Mogens Schou, M.D., research director, Aarhus University, Risshov, Denmark; Gordon Johnson, M.D., research scientist, New York University Medical Center; Oscar L. Miller, Ph.D., research biochemist, Oak Ridge National Laboratories; and Oakley Ray, Ph.D., research psychologist, Veterans Hospital, Pittsburgh, PA. Dr. Ray will soon become affiliated with Nashville Veterans Hospital and the faculty of the Department of Psychology at Vanderbilt University.

Others in attendance included R. A. Ferguson, Ph.D., Chief, Psychology Service, Murfreesboro VAH; Ernest S. Barratt, Ph.D., University of Texas Medical Branch, Galveston; Paul D'Encarnaco, Ph.D., psychologist on the faculty at Memphis State University; E. J. Anthony, biological laboratory technician, Murfreesboro VAH; William E. Fann, M.D., Vanderbilt University School of Medicine; Andrew Ho, Ph.D., New York University Medical Center; H. E. Lucarno, M.D., Murfreesboro VAH; Bill Moore, Paramedical Investors, Incorporated; Charles Perry, United States Army; Baron Shopsin, M.D., New York University Medical Center; J. W. Wiser, Ph.D., Head, Department of Chemistry, MTSU; J. Howard Young, M.D., Murfreesboro Medical Center; Allen Borger, M.D., Charles Pfizer and Company, Incorporated; William E. Coopwood, M.D., psychiatric resident at Vanderbilt, Pat D'Encarnaco, M.D., University of Tennessee; Ben E. Greenwell, Ph.D., Rowell Laboratories, Incorporated; Theodore Myers, Ph.D., Smith, Kline and French Laboratories; and Rod Tiongson, M.D., and Nora Tiongson, M.D., both members of the staff of Western State Hospital, Bolivar, TN.

Drs. Wittrig and Woods, in collaboration with other professionals and students who are dynamically interested in lithium studies, have organized Lithium Round-Table, Incorporated, a non-profit organization devoted to the support of research on lithium everywhere and to the sponsorship of scientific conferences related thereto.

PROSPECTIVE DOCTORS FACE DRAFT

The Scientific Manpower Commission, 2101 Constitution Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20418, has published its report of the most recent studies of the effects of Selective Service classifications on graduate training programs in colleges and universities in the United States. Price is $2.00 per copy.

SMC sent questionnaires to 210 psychology departments which grant doctorates. One hundred and one responded. Findings are that 39 percent of all first-year male students and about 47 percent of all second-year students with known classifications are draft eligible.

SMC noted that the draft affected enrollment in graduate programs only slightly last autumn but that substantial losses of both first- and second-year students may be expected this fall. In turn, these losses will probably mean a serious curtailment of the supply of newly trained PhD's in the 1970's.

KHANNA EDITS VOLUME

Jaswant L. Khanna, Ph.D., psychologist on the staff at the University of Tennessee College of Medicine, Memphis, is the editor of Brain Damage and Mental Retardation; A Psychological Evaluation, a book recently published by Charles C. Thomas, Springfield, IL.

Dr. Khanna's book is a systematic compilation of essays written by 23 authorities on brain damage and mental deficiency. The text treats psychological assessment, particularly those procedures which are involved in evaluating children intellectually, the effects of cultural deprivation, the importance of parent-child relations, etc. The importance of interpretive parent interviews is emphasized.

Dr. Khanna's text brings together valuable information from psychiatry, pediatric neurology, and clinical, developmental, social, and experimental psychology.

IN MEMORIAM

The membership of the Tennessee Psychological Association was deeply grieved by the untimely death in December of last year of Dr. Travis Leon Hawk, esteemed professor of educational psychology at the University of Tennessee.

Professor Hawk earned his Bachelor of Arts and Master of Science degrees at North Texas State and his doctorate at the University of Texas. He joined the UT faculty in 1959. His sincerity of purpose, vital interest in the educative process, and sympathetic understanding endeared him to his students. His ever active concerns about the science of psychology, e.g., his pursuits in the fields of learning theory, concepts related to self, and the social bases of behavior, merited the respect of his fellow psychologists.

Professor Hawk was a loyal and contributing member of TPA. His passing kindles a poignant feeling of profound loss.

DIVISION SIXTEEN PROMOTE TRAINING INSTITUTE

School psychologists affiliated with the American Psychological Association will hold their 14th Professional Training Institute on August 27, 28, 29, and 30 in the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, D. C.

Theme of this APA Division 16 training venture is "The Behavioral Scientist in the Classroom." Five sessions will be held simultaneously. Maurice F. Freehill of the University of Washington will give instruction on personality factors in gifted children. C. Edward Myers, Southern California, will talk on contemporary theoretical positions in psychology and their relevance to the practice of school psychology. Nicolas Long, Hillcrest Children's Center, Washington, will lead discussions on management of emotional conflicts in the classroom. Haim Ginnott of New York City will develop the theme, "Between Parent and Child." Wesley C. Becker of the University of Illinois will present materials on behavioral modification in the school setting.

Dr. Merle L. Meacham, College of Education, University of Washington, Seattle, WA 98105, will send interested psychologists further information about this institute and forms for applicants to complete. Fee for enrollment is $40.00 per person.

GUSTAD NAMED COLLEGE PRESIDENT

John W. Gustad, Ph.D., ex-member of the faculty of the Department of Psychology at Vanderbilt University, became president of Fort Hays Kansas State College on July 1, 1969.

Dr. Gustad served as coordinator of Nebraska State Colleges before he was chosen for his new position. Before he went to Nebraska, he was associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and professor of psychology and higher education at The Ohio State University.

COOK REPRESENTS TPA

Official representative of the American Psychological Association at the inauguration on April 29 of Dr. John A. Fincher as the 19th president of Carson-Newman College, Jefferson City, TN, was Dr. Edgar M. Cook.

Dr. Cook served with distinction as dean and professor of psychology at Carson-Newman for many years.

EDITORIAL

PSYCHOLOGISTS REMISS

Interesting indeed is the zest with which some psychologists call for "social action." One wonders if this enthusiasm is not similar to the ardor with which many psychologists talk about action within their science-profession -- and in turn do precious little to implement their ideas and to advance the contributions of psychology to the general weal. Perhaps one witnesses here a characteristic which often plagues adolescents, viz., a breezy kind of idealism made manifest by fellows who simply are missing when the work, sometimes tedious and taxing but nonetheless essential, must be done.

Interrogation reveals that many sub-organizations within organized psychology have no end of trouble when the transacting of essential business is at hand. Representatives of state associations often complain that very few of their members participate in their important deliberations. The Division of Educational Psychology (Division 15) of the American Psychological Association has over 3,000 members, but only about 20 bothered to attend the annual business meeting held last autumn. The issues arising from the Albee Report, matters which may have far-reaching significance as the future unfolds, are scarcely of passing concern in the minds of the bulk of the members of APA.

Elsewhere in this issue of the TENNESSEE PSYCHOLOGIST is a form for the use of any psychologist who is eligible for membership in the newly established Division of State Psychological Associations (Division 31). It is earnestly trusted that all members of the Tennessee Psychological Association will affiliate themselves promptly with DSPA and energetically work toward the accomplishment of its goals.

MILTON CO-EDITS BOOK

E. Ohmer Milton, Ph.D., professor of psychology at the University of Tennessee and coordinator of the UT Learning Research Center, is co-editor of Learning and the Professors, a volume recently published by Ohio University Press, Athens, OH.

Dr. Milton and his collaborator, E. J. Shoben, Ph.D., include in their book 14 essays which they believe will stimulate informed and disciplined thought among college teachers about educational procedures and learning tasks.

A MERITED HONOR AND TRUST

The membership of the Tennessee Psychological Association is both gratified and proud in the knowledge that Raymond R. Shrader, associate professor of psychology at the University of Tennessee, has been elected president of the Southeastern Psychological Association. The honor which has come to him is fully merited. The mantle of trust with which his fellows throughout the region have invested him now adorns broad and capable shoulders.

Raymond Robert Shrader, born July 21, 1920, received his Bachelor's and Master's degrees at Louisiana State University and his doctorate from UT. He taught at LSU before joining the UT faculty in 1950. Since then he has served TPA consistently and effectively. Perhaps his outstanding contribution to his state organization has been his wise participation as its official representative in the deliberations of councils of the American Psychological Association.

Dr. Shrader's fellow members of TPA wish him the success in his SEPA administration which his sincerity of purpose and his talents certainly guarantee.

MILLER JOINS BACON FIRM

H. Stuart Bacon, Ph.D., diplomate in clinical psychology and well-known private practitioner, has announced that Leonard M. Miller, Ph.D., has joined him as a partner in Bacon, Miller, and Associates. Offices of the firm are at 1828 White Avenue, Knoxville, TN 37916. Telephone number is 525-5318.

Dr. Miller holds his Bachelor of Science degree from Tulane, his Master of Arts from Louisiana State, and his doctorate from the University of Tennessee. He brings a wide variety of clinical experiences to his tasks.

PPP'S PROMOTE ORGANIZATION

American Psychological Association psychologists in private practice reactivated their organization at the San Francisco APA meetings.

APA members interested in joining PPP are encouraged to submit applications to Acting Secretary Rose Elfman, Ph.D., Beach and Harvey Roads, Chester, PA 19013.

FOX STUDIES INTERNSHIP TRAINING

Ronald Fox, Ph.D., director of psychology intern training at the Ohio State University Medical School, wants the names and addresses of all practicum facilities for psychology students in Tennessee.

Dr. Fox has started a program for the study of the training of clinical psychologists in practicum situations. He plans to evaluate internship facilities and their programs and activities throughout the country. He hopes to begin his investigations regionally. Helping him in the Southeast are Mary G. Clarke, Ph.D., and Robert B. Duke, Ph.D., of the Department of Psychiatry of the School of Medicine of the University of North Carolina (Chapel Hill, NC 27514).

Drs. Clarke and Duke want assistance in preparing a list of the names and addresses of all psychology intern training centers in this area. Thus they solicit pertinent information from members of the Tennessee Psychological Association.

Efforts have repeatedly been made, Drs. Clarke and Duke have said, to evaluate graduate training in clinical psychology. They explain, "These efforts have focused on training in the graduate school, but they have tended to neglect the training of clinical psychology interns in intern settings. Dr. Fox and his collaborators hope to overcome this deficiency."

CALIFORNIA WANTS PSYCHOLOGISTS

California wants to hire psychologists.

William Webster, State Personnel Board, 801 Capitol Mall, Sacramento, CA 95814, has announced that applications will be welcome from clinical, counseling, educational, experimental, medical, and social psychologists. Annual salaries offered range from $11,676 to $14,196.

All persons employed as psychologists by the State of California must have doctorates. However, any person who will receive his doctor's degree within one year may apply for the position of psychology associate. Holders of associate jobs get from $9,612 to $10,608 a year.

BATTLE REPORTS RORSCHACH RESEARCH

Allen O. Battle, Ph.D., associate professor of clinical psychology at the University of Tennessee Medical Center, Memphis, lectured in London last August.

Dr. Battle, who took his advanced degree at Catholic University in 1961, presented research findings at the International Congress on Rorschach and Other Projective Techniques.

ARISTOTELIAN DUALISM

And Aristotle wrote:

"As the soul and body are two, we see also that there are two parts of the soul, the rational and the irrational, and two corresponding states--reason and appetite. And as the body is prior in order of generation to the soul, so the irrational is prior to the rational. The proof is that anger and wishing and desire are implanted in children from their very birth, but reason and understanding are developed as they grow older. Wherefore, the care of the body ought to precede that of the soul, and the training of the appetitive part should follow; nonetheless, our care of it must be for the sake of the reason, and our care of the body for the sake of the soul."

SWENSEN TEACHES AT PURDUE

Clifford H. Swensen, who received his Ph.D. from Pittsburgh in 1952, is now a professor of psychology at Purdue University. He is also chairman of the clinical training committee there.

Prior to 1962 Dr. Swensen was a member of the faculty of the University of Tennessee.

NEW MENTAL HEALTH FACILITY PLANNED

American Psychiatric Hospitals, Incorporated, plans to construct a new psychiatric hospital in the vicinity of Knoxville before 1971. Lewis F. Wood, Jr., Nashvillian who serves as vice-president of the firm, says the 100-bed facility will cost about $1,200,000.

HELPING ONE'S FALLEN BROTHER

It is likely that many psychologists have conjectured about the possibility that they may run risks of being sued for coming to the aid or rescue of victims of disasters, traffic accidents, or acts of violence. They are keenly aware that modern-day America is the scene of many catastrophes which threaten life and limb. And albeit their sentiments prompt them to give succor to the wounded and to lift the spirits of the woebegone, they don't want to do things which may cost them their fortunes if not their honor.

Thus it is important to recognize that the State of Tennessee has a "Good Samaritan Law." It constitutes Section 63-622 of Chapter VI, entitled "Medicine and Surgery," of the statutes on the healing arts. It reads:

"Any person, including those licensed to practice medicine and surgery and including any person licensed to render service ancillary thereto, who in good faith renders emergency care at the scene of an accident and/or disaster to the victim or victims thereof without making any charge therefor shall not be liable for any civil damages as a result of any act or omission by such person in rendering the emergency care or as a result of any act or failure to act to provide or arrange for further medical treatment or care for the injured person, except such damages as may result from the gross negligence of the person rendering such care."

Be it observed that immunity from suit is granted by this statute to any person as long as he does not charge for his services and remains innocent of gross negligence. Not only are physicians and their licensed ancillary personnel protected; the citizenry at large may help accident and disaster victims without fear of time-consuming and financially costly legal involvement. Gross negligence as used in this instance implies wilfull and wanton neglect.

This legal provision is written into those laws which have to do with the practice of medicine and includes specific provisions for physicians and their helpers chiefly because of history. Traditionally it has not been baker, plumber, and candlestick maker who has borne the burden of legal suit. It has been the medico. Nonetheless, the law protects everybody, and it is proper that it should do so. Nobody should discourage a fellow who wants to help a fallen brother.

MINUTES OF TPA BUSINESS MEETING

The 1968 business meeting of the Tennessee Psychological Association was held last October 14 in the Hotel Patton, Chattanooga. President Rue Cromwell presided.

The secretary-treasurer reported on the financial status of the organization. He stated that the monetary balance brought forth from 1967 was $493.13 and that dues paid from November 18, 1967, to October 7, 1968, amounted to $817.00. Total of these figures is $1,310.13. Since disbursements for the same period of time were $818.53, total assets on October 7 were $491.60.

The duly constituted quorum present approved an increase in dues to $7.50 per year for each member and $3.00 per year for each associate.

The members voted to submit to ballot an addition to the TPA Bylaws; to wit, "Three members-at-large, one from each grand geographical division of the state, will regularly be elected to serve on the TPA Board of Directors."

The membership approved a recommendation that a Standing Committee on Honors be established. Function of this committee is annually to name and appropriately honor, e.g., by a suitable award, a Tennessee psychologist who has made an outstanding contribution to psychology as a discipline and a profession.

The members decreed that the method whereby the editor of the official publication of THE TENNESSEE PSYCHOLOGIST is annually selected should be put to ballot. Heretofore he has been elected. The members present concurred in the judgment that it might well be preferable that he be appointed.

The members present advocated an appropriate TPA Bylaws change whereby archives for the organization might be formally established and maintained.

The membership voted to hold future annual meetings on Mondays and Tuesdays.

The members gave their approval to a proposal for the establishment of a new TPA membership category, to wit, sustaining member.

The body voted to submit to ballot the proposal that a Standing Committee on School Psychology be established.

Steve Brody, Chairman, Ad Hoc Committee on Medicaid Legislation, reported that he and his fellow committeemen, Leon Lebovitz and Robert F. Stepbach, were in communication with John L.

Heintzelman, Director, Division of Medical Care, Tennessee Department of Mental Health, and that "he understands our position and is sympathetic with our desire to have psychological services covered by Medicaid here." The members present expressed approval of the work of the committee and encouraged it to continue to pursue its goals.

The membership approved the following names for submission to the Governor of Tennessee for appointment to the Tennessee Board of Examiners in Psychology: Practicing psychologists--Stuart Bacon, Robert F. Stepbach, Jr., W. Theodore May, Leon Lebovitz, and Howard Ihrig; academic psychologists--John Larsen, Gerald Whitlock, Phil Schoggen, and Henry Tomes.

The membership inspected and expressed approbation of a certificate in honor of the late A. D. Mueller, Ph.D. This certificate will be presented to Dr. Mueller's widow, and a copy thereof is to be placed in the Archives of the American Psychological Association.

Jerry Boone reported that Evelyn Rule had replaced Norman Rasch as Chairman, Tennessee Board of Examiners in Psychology.

Ray Shrader, TPA APA Council Representative, announced that the 1969 APA Convention will be held in Washington, the 1970 sessions in Miami, and the 1971 sessions in Chicago. Dr. Shrader urged support of Division 31.

Ernest Furchgott announced the results of the annual election of officers. Gus K. Bell was named president-elect, Francis H. Deter editor of THE TENNESSEE PSYCHOLOGIST.

The 1968 Membership Committee, in efforts to increase membership, mailed enticing letters and application forms to departmental chairmen at Aquinas Junior College, Belmont, Bethel, Carson-Newman, Cleveland State Community College, Peabody, David Lipscomb, East Tennessee State University, Freed-Hardeman, King, Lane, Lincoln Memorial University, Maryville, Memphis State, Milligan, Scarritt, Southwestern at Memphis, Chattanooga, University of the South, UT, Tennessee AI, Tennessee Wesleyan, Tusculum, Union University, and Vanderbilt. Departments in other institutions were to be communicated with subsequently.

Warren Webb submitted the name of Carol Sue Raff for consideration for associate membership. Miss Raff's application was approved.

President Cromwell requested the committeemen on membership to evaluate and to report on proposed methods and activities whereby TPA may become "more functionally useful." Several suggestions were under consideration. First, it was proposed that Tennessee psychologists, albeit they will continue to present their final and complete research reports at regional, national, and international meetings, might use annual TPA meetings for discussing preliminary findings. Second, it was suggested that the yearly sessions might provide both undergraduate and graduate students with experiences in scientific communication. Third, TPA, it was advocated, should continue to serve as an official avenue of communications with APA, other state associations, other professional organizations in Tennessee, local and state governmental departments and agencies, and civic groups. Fourth, full dissemination of information concerning special lectures at universities and elsewhere was urged. Fifth, publication in THE TENNESSEE PSYCHOLOGIST of listings of titles of research in progress or planned it was concluded, might be valuably informative.

It was recommended that the Ad Hoc Committee on Violence in Human Relations be continued throughout 1969.

Leon Lebovitz gave the report of the Ad Hoc Committee on the Ulrey K. Wilson Memorial Fund. Recommendations made by the committee-men and approved by the membership called for (1) requesting the University of Chattanooga to consider endowing a chair in the late Dr. Wilson's honor, (2) asking the State Department of Mental Health to name a facility for Dr. Wilson, and (3) founding a Wilson Scholarship Fund for worthy students of psychology.

The membership approved the recommendation that a "certificate of merit" in appreciation of Dr. Wilson's long and meritorious services be prepared and presented to his widow, Mrs. Ulrey Wilson.

William Fitts cited the excellent work done by Dr. Cromwell in the role of TPA president, and the membership assembled responded in enthusiastic accord. C. William Deckner, Walter M. Ruby, and Carol Sue Raff were applauded for their untiring and creative planning and administration of the TPA Convention.

President Ernest Furchtgott assumed the chair and adjourned the session.

Respectfully submitted,

ROBERT F. STEPBACH, Jr., Ed.D.
Secretary-Treasurer

BE IT KNOWN!

The 1969 Annual Meeting of the Tennessee Psychological Association will be held on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, October 19, 20, and 21, in Memphis. Program chairman is Dr. Robert N. Vidulich.

LETTER OF APPRECIATION

The membership of TPA resolved at the 1968 Annual Business Meeting to present Mrs. Cecilia Wilson, Chattanooga, a certificate in appreciation of the long and meritorious services to psychology and the public welfare of her late husband, Ulrey K. Wilson, Ph.D.

This certificate was given, and Mrs. Ulrey's letter of appreciation thereof, dated January 31, 1969, and addressed to Dr. Rue Cromwell, is quoted:

"Dear Dr. Cromwell,

"Please let me thank you and the members of the Tennessee Psychological Association for its thoughtful tribute made to my late husband, Dr. Ulrey K. Wilson. The certificate of recognition and appreciation is something I will cherish and hold dear always. I know Ulrey would be very pleased and proud of the honor which has been bestowed on him.

"Will you please convey to the Tennessee Psychological Association my deep gratitude."

UT GAINS FACULTY

Additions to the faculty of the Department of Psychology at the beginning of the 1968-1969 academic year were Charles Allen and James C. Johnson. Dr. Allen received his advanced degree from the University of Maryland, and his primary interests are in industrial psychology and human engineering. Professor Johnson got his doctorate at the University of Minnesota. His forte is industrial psychology and the study of individual differences.

Drs. John N. McFarland and Halford S. Whitaker are now part-time faculty members. McFarland, who holds the Ph.D. from the University of Georgia, is Director of Human Development, Greene Valley Hospital and School. Whitaker, who was granted an M.D. by the Medical School of the University of Georgia, is clinical director at Greene Valley.

UT has announced that Howard R. Pollio, Ph.D., is studying linguistics at the University of London.

1. Members of Division 31 shall be persons who are (a) members in good standing of APA, (b) members in good standing of a state psychological association affiliated with APA, and (c) interested in state psychological association affairs. The designation member herein includes fellow.
2. The associate category is designed to encourage participation of those individuals who are presently associates of APA who have expressed interest in participating in the work of Division 31. Associates are encouraged to apply for regular membership as soon as they meet the requirements set forth in Section 4 of the by-laws of Division 31. Associates will be non-voting members of Division 31 and will not be eligible to hold office.
3. The method of election for members of Division 31 will be as follows: (a) The prospective member shall apply in writing (e.g., by the use of this form) to the Membership Committee. (b) Applications for membership shall be reviewed by the Membership Committee, which may request additional information from the applicants. When, in the opinion of the Membership Committee, there is adequate information concerning a prospective member, the Membership Committee shall recommend acceptance to the Board of Directors. (c) The Board of Directors shall elect applicants to the class of membership for which they qualified. (d) Election of new members shall be effected at least once per year.
4. New members shall immediately be notified of their election, and such election shall not become effective unless dues and/or assessments are paid within two months of receipt of notification of election.

PROPOSED BYLAWS AMENDMENTS

If you are a member of TPA, you will find a ballot inserted between the next-to-last page and the last page of your copy of this issue of the TENNESSEE PSYCHOLOGIST. You are to use this ballot to vote on those amendments to the TPA BYLAWS proposed and recommended by majority vote of the members in attendance at the 1968 business meeting.

Article VIII of the TPA BYLAWS provides for amendments thereto. This article is quoted:

"1. Amendments to these bylaws may be proposed at any annual or special meeting by majority vote of the members, by majority vote of the board of directors, or by a petition signed by at least 10 percent of the members.

"2. Amendments so proposed shall be submitted to all members for mail vote, and may be passed by a majority vote of those voting within 30 days after the mailing date.

"3. Votes shall be counted by the election committee, which shall certify the results to the board of directors within 20 days after the deadline for voting. Amendments which have been approved shall go into effect no later than 30 days after the deadline for voting, unless otherwise stated in the amendment."

You are urged to complete your voting as soon as possible and to mail your ballot to Gus K. Bell, Ph.D., 1920 Church Street, Nashville, TN 37214. Dr. Bell is chairman of the TPA Committee on Elections.

UT PSYCHOLOGISTS TEST KNOXVILLE COPS

The Department of Psychology of the University of Tennessee is psychologically testing applicants for jobs as Knoxville policemen.

Kenneth R. Newton, Ph.D., UT professor of psychology, is in charge of the testing procedure. He says both objective and projective personality evaluations are made. He explains, "We receive the applicants after they have reached a certain point in the screening process done by the Police Department, and we send the chief of police a written report on every person examined. We make no decisions. We supply information."

Randy Tyree, intelligence officer for the Police Department, believes the UT program represents a "progressive step in securing higher qualified men who are able to work effectively with our people." Officer Harry Huskisson commented that the tests "help the department by pointing out those applicants who have no business in police work." Test results tend to show the basic stabilities of candidates and the extent to which they may act aggressively when confronted with stress and danger.
