Fireworks Safety Then and Now

Have you ever set off a firework? It can be very dangerous. Here are a few safety tips: Wear safety goggles, have a bucket of water, make sure to back up once you set it off, don’t light them near trees, houses, or buildings, and take the box off before lighting the fireworks.

Fireworks have changed lots over the years. Back then, they didn't use any safety equipment to keep people from getting hurt. In fact, they were so unsafe that over 800 people died in a fire accident in the 1700's because they didn’t use any equipment such as safety goggles and buckets of water.

Firework Facts From The 1920’s
1. Fireworks didn’t have any warning labels.
2. Fireworks started an average of 19,000 fires each year.