A choice made in a Second
By Grace Ha

One second to sleep in a little bit more.
One second to run out of the door.
One second to run to the car.
One second to rush to work on time.
One second to speed on the street.

A yellow flashing light you ignore.
You can hear your engine roar.
Then you feel a bump. How bizarre!
One second rushed that made you commit a crime.

Your whole life changed in one second.
A simple decision that took one second.
Unfortunately, this problem won't last for one second.
A fatal judgement that will cost you more than one second.
Now only regret and sorrow will be in each of your seconds.
If only you decided to sleep earlier in that one second.