WEPAN Women of Color Summit: Leveraging, Learning, and Leading

Speaker Bio

Helena Mariella-Walrond, PhD
Professor of Education, School of Education, Bethune-Cookman University

Helena Mariella-Walrond, Ph.D. serves as Professor of Education in the School of Education at Bethune-Cookman University. She received a BA and MA in Anthropology from the University of North Carolina at Wilmington and Wake Forest University respectively and her PhD in Social, Historical and Philosophical Foundations of Education from the University of South Carolina.

Dr. Mariella-Walrond’s research interests include educational justice, culturally responsive teaching, curriculum and instructional theory and design and multicultural education. She has taught courses in Foundations of Education, Curriculum Theory and Design, Teaching Students with English as a Second Language and Research. She is the PI for the Florida Alliance for Graduate Education (AGEP) and the Professoriate: Improving Minority Women Success in STEM Faculty Careers.

Dr. Walrond has significant experience with curricular and academic program development, academic policies, assessment and regional and discipline specific accreditation, having served as a reviewer both for the state of Florida and the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges (SACSCOC). Dr. Mariella-Walrond has led several University-Wide efforts such as the revision of the general education curriculum, the development and implementation a comprehensive infrastructure for the IE process, including institutional research and assessment processes and the successful development and final affirmation of the University’s Fifth-year report to SACSCOC.