

As a Procurement Technical Assistance Specialist with the District of Columbia Procurement Technical Assistance Center

(DC PTAC), a program of the Department of Small and Local Business Development (DSLBD), Sheila Edmondson is responsible for assisting in building capacity and developing growth strategies for District of Columbia businesses in pursuit of government contracts. During her tenure with DC PTAC, clients have won over $100 million in federal, state and local government contract dollars. Prior to joining the District government, Sheila was responsible for the oversight of over $10 million in information security, telecommunication, management and consulting portfolios.

Sheila is a Certified Procurement Professional through the Association of Procurement Technical Assistance Centers (APTAC), and holds a Project Management Certification from The George Washington University. She is the Past President of the Board of Directors for the Court Appointed Special Advocates for Children, Prince George's County (CASA PG), a current Trustee on the Board of Directors for Cesar Chavez Public Charter Schools, and also serves as a trusted advisor to other community organizations promoting economic development, the welfare of children and the arts.

sheila.edmondson@dc.gov