Young Women in Bio is a special initiative of Women In Bio, designed to introduce school girls to careers in science, technology, engineering and math (STEM).

YWIB San Francisco Bay Area chapter is launching yCARE, an initiative to work with a few partner organizations and schools that serve underserved communities. yCARE’s vision is to build Career Awareness, be a Role model and Energize school girls in these communities to study STEM.

Inspire underserved young women

We are seeking volunteers from the biopharma industry. If you are passionate about STEM outreach and encouraging girls from under-resourced communities to learn science and pursue careers in science, please fill out this short form to join our volunteer pool.

We will contact you no more than 2 - 4 times per year with a list of available events. Each event is only one-time commitment, and you may choose any event you’re interested in.

You do not need to be a WIB member to volunteer for yCARE!

Typical yCARE events include:

- mock career fairs
- job shadowing
- speed networking
- guest lectures
- informational meeting / mentoring
- and more!
