

Wild Coffee

Psychotria nervosa

Description: A native shrub produces groups of small white flowers in spring and summer. Its red fruit resembles the true coffee bean.

Height: Typically 4-6 feet.

Light: Light shade to full sun.

Drought Tolerance: Moderate.

Wildlife and Ecology: Provides significant food and cover for wildlife. Nectar plant for atala, great southern white, julia, Schaus' swallowtail, and other butterflies. Birds and other animals eat the fruits.